PwC's Business School grows talent by providing our people, clients, profession and the wider business community with the right skills and core competencies to ensure that they reach their full potential. We do this through learning solutions that are relevant in today's business environment and are linked to business strategy and specific industry factors.

For PwC, developing people and sharing knowledge is central to how we do business. We believe it's pivotal to the growth of our firm, our clients, the industries within which we operate, and the broader economy.

Due to our deep expertise in our own industry, and our knowledge of our clients and the industries in which they operate, we're subject matter experts in various areas. This knowledge base is constantly growing and we're focused on delivering relevant learning and development solutions based on this knowledge and our practical experience.

Learning solutions

Accounting

The Accounting Centre at PwC's Business School provides regular courses on the latest developments in IFRS, as well as offering client-specific training events. Our approach to training goes beyond the theoretical requirements of accounting standards and provides insight into the practical challenges of compliance, the perspectives of accounting regulators, and the views of investors.

Corporate governance

Disruptions abound in today's business world. Some stakeholders want boards to become more diverse, and increasingly vocal shareholders want to communicate differently with company directors and management. Technology is drastically altering the world of business, presenting vast new opportunities and increasingly pronounced risks. Things are changing in the corporate governance world.

Tax

The Business School's Tax Centre aims to demystify the SA tax minefield. The complexity, sophistication and sheer volume of tax legislation, case law and practice has increased exponentially over the last decade or so, and most taxpayers are not even sure what they need to be aware of. We offer a series of generic public seminars on various topics, as well as bespoke client-specific training sessions.
