

External Assurance of non financial metrics – the value spectrum

External Assurance of non financial metrics – the value spectrum

Issues driving the need for assurance

- As businesses continue to face social and economic challenges, the level of interest in value added (or taken away) and social impact (positive and negative) will continue to increase.
- Stakeholders have moved beyond “tell me”, “show me” to “involve me”, “convince me”.
- Stakeholders, other than shareholders, are having an increasing influence over business and are demanding more and better information as they pursue higher standards of responsibility and accountability from businesses.
- Your report tells the story of change and how the change was measured.
- In order to demonstrate your outcomes (impact) you need quality data.
- Guidelines such as the International Integrated Reporting Framework and the GRI (G4) guidelines have increased the focus on reporting material issues.
